- Get married
- Have a baby
- Adopt a child or have a child placed with you for foster care
- Get divorced or legally separated and lose health insurance

THE OREGON HEALTH PLAN

Free or low-cost coverage is available to people who meet income, residency, and other requirements. Oregonians may also qualify based on age and disability status. Adults and children who qualify will be enrolled in OHP, Oregon's Medicaid program. OHP coverage includes doctor visits, hospital care, mental health services, dental, some vision care, and more.

If your estimated household income for 2016 is less than one of the amounts shown, you will likely qualify for OHP.

1	$16,394	$36,234
2	$22,108	$48,861
3	$27,821	$61,488
4	$33,534	$74,115
5	$39,247	$86,742
6	$44,960	$99,369

How to apply

Those eligible for OHP can apply at any time. If you qualify, you will be enrolled automatically and your coverage could start immediately. No special enrollment period is required.

There are several ways to apply. You can:

DON'T QUALIFY?

What if I don't qualify for a special enrollment period or OHP?

Your next chance to enroll or change plans will be during open enrollment, which will occur Nov. 1, 2016, to Jan. 31, 2017.

If you didn't have health care coverage for three months or more, you will either have to pay a penalty or apply for a health care coverage exemption.

The penalty

If you don't get an exemption, you will pay a fee when you file your federal income tax return. The penalty for 2016 is the higher of these:

- 2.5% of your yearly household income
- $695 for every adult in your family plus $347.50 for every child under 18

Exemptions

You may qualify for a health care coverage exemption. You claim some health care coverage exemptions on your federal tax return. Others you apply for with a paper application. Exemptions are based on a number of things, such as certain hardships, life events, health care coverage or financial status, and membership in some groups. For more information, go to irs.gov (keyword: exemptions).
